

Pioneer Merger Key Messages

Key messages:

- This deal strengthens America's energy security by bringing the best technologies, operational excellence and financial capability to an important source of domestic supply. This will enable ExxonMobil to increase the production from these existing assets more efficiently and with a lower environmental impact.
- The proposed merger advances the energy transition. By combining both companies' operational best practices and infrastructure, ExxonMobil will lower its collective environmental footprint and accelerate Pioneer Natural Resources net-zero plan from 2050 to 2035.
 - o ExxonMobil will work to leverage its Permian GHG reduction plans to accelerate Pioneer Natural Resources net zero target by 15 years.
 - o Our goal is lower both companies' methane emissions in the Permian by using the same aggressive strategy and applying our industry-leading new technologies for monitoring, measuring, and addressing fugitive methane.
 - o Using combined operating capabilities and infrastructure, we expect to increase the amount of recycled water used in our Permian operations to more than 90% by 2030.
- Pioneer's contiguous acreage creates greater opportunities to deploy our technologies, delivering operating and capital efficiency as well as significantly increasing production.
 - o Adding Pioneer to our existing land in the Midland basin will allow us to do what we do best – drill and complete very long, successful wells in the most efficient manner.
 - o We expect to enhance field digitalization and automation that will optimize production throughput and cost.
- Transaction summary: We plan to purchase Pioneer in an all-stock deal valued at approximately $60 billion and expect the deal to close in the first half of 2024 pending Pioneer shareholder approval and regulatory approvals.
- While the deal is "big" in terms of dollar value it is small in terms of the combined companies' aggregate volume of oil and gas production globally, domestically and in the Permian, which is ~15% in the Permian, ~5% in the US and ~3% worldwide.

Deal details: The approximately $60 billion merger creates industry-leading, high-quality, high-return undeveloped U.S. unconventional inventory by adding Pioneer Natural Resources' more than 850,000 net acres in the Midland Basin to ExxonMobil's 570,000 net acres in the Delaware and Midland basins for a combined, estimated resource of 16 billion barrels of oil equivalent.

- o ExxonMobil's Permian production volume would more than double to 1.3 million barrels of oil equivalent (MOEBD), based on 2023 volumes at the close of the deal, which is expected in the first half of 2024 subject to Pioneer shareholder approval and regulatory approvals.

Questions and Answers:

Q1. Does this transaction mean ExxonMobil is doubling down on fossil fuels?

- A1. We are investing in both sides of the "and equation." This deal is an opportunity to provide energy security and use our technology and expertise to lower costs of oil and gas extraction – not raise them. For ExxonMobil, this is also a unique chance to take a very large U.S. energy producer and bend their carbon emissions curve in the same direction in which ExxonMobil's carbon intensity is heading, downward.

Q2. Will this merger impact jobs?

- A2. Reducing overhead and the workforce is not driving this deal. Significant benefits will come from the combined capabilities of the two organizations, our advanced technology and Pioneer Natural Resources advantaged acreage.

Q3. Will ExxonMobil close Pioneer's Irving office and moving its employees to Houston? If so, when?

- A3. Pioneer's Irving office will remain open for at least two years. Updates will be provided as the companies move through the integration process.

Q4. Will consumers see an impact to gas prices as a result of the planned merger?

- A4. We expect to generate incremental returns by recovering more resources, more efficiently with lower environmental impact – a win for consumers and the companies' shareholders.

Q5. Does the deal harm competition?

- A5. The deal is small in terms of combined share of global, U.S. and Permian production – it's less than 3% of global, 6% of US domestic, and 15% of total Permian basin production combined.

Also, there is no meaningful horizontal overlap between Pioneer and Exxon's nonproduction related assets.

- Pioneer does not own or operate any refinery, terminal, or retail related assets.
 - Pioneer does not operate any pipelines, gathering systems or gas processing facilities.
 - Exxon does not operate any pipelines, gathering systems or gas processing facilities in the Midland Basin.

Actions needed to advance ExxonMobil's 2030 and 2035 greenhouse gas emission-reductions plans are incorporated into its medium-term business plans, which are updated annually. The reference case for planning beyond 2030 is based on the Company's Energy Outlook research and publication. The Outlook is reflective of the existing global policy environment, the Energy Outlook does not attempt to project the degree of required future policy and technology advancement and deployment for the world, or ExxonMobil, to meet net zero by 2050. As future policies and technology advancements emerge, they will be incorporated into the Outlook, and the Company's business plans will be updated accordingly. Actual future results, including the achievement of net zero in Upstream Permian Basin unconventional operated assets by 2030/2035 and plans to lower methane emissions from operated assets, to increase water recycling in our combined Permian operations, and to feed hydrogen, ammonia, and carbon capture projects could vary depending on the ability to execute operational objectives on a timely and successful basis; policy support for emission-reduction products and technologies; changes in laws, regulations and international treaties regarding lower emission technologies and projects; government incentives; unforeseen technical or operational difficulties; the outcome of research efforts and future technology developments, including the ability to scale projects, technologies, and markets on a commercially competitive basis; changes in supply and demand and other market factors affecting future prices of oil, gas, and petrochemical products; the actions of competitors; and other factors discussed in this communication and in the additional Forward Looking Statement disclaimer included above.
